

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXI.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1893.

NO. 39

BARBOURVILLE.

—A select party of friends spent quite a pleasant evening with Miss Lillie Clarke, Monday.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Moss, of Pineville, were down a few hours Monday to see Hon. J. H. Wilson.

—Mrs. Otis C. Black, deputy County Court clerk, is very sick with strong indications of typhoid fever.

—Mrs. Lizzie E. Dishman, wife of the late Dr. Dishman of this place, died at the Widows and Orphans' Home in Louisville, Saturday evening and was buried here Monday.

—A number of our young folks composed quite a pleasant excursion party up Cumberland River from this place Tuesday morning and spent the day. They took dinner with them.

—The graded school at this place will open next Monday with Prof. J. M. Hays, late applicant for deputy collector, as principal. Mr. Will Amies, first assistant, Miss Nannie Brittain, second assistant. The third assistant is yet to be selected.

—Miss Daisy Potter, who has been visiting here for several days, returned Tuesday to her home near Manchester. Mr. Ed Tinsley accompanied her and will bring his father home from court at that place, which by the way will adjourn this week.

—Mr. Sam Clay, Jr., late of Lexington, Ky., and New York, is teaching a class in short-hand and type-writing at this place. Mr. Clay and wife have rooms at the Gibson House. Miss Nannie Brittain gave a card party Tuesday evening at her home on Main St.

—Four gentlemen of this place claim to be the champion "clinch" players of the Cumberland Valley. They are H. W. Bowman, T. M. Sampson, E. W. Cole and W. T. Miller. They spend the most of these hot days in the rear of Bowman's jewelry store at this pleasant pastime.

—No little amount of preparation is being made for Circuit Court which convenes here a week from next Monday. More than a dozen new suits were filed Tuesday and each day this week has seen fully half as many more. No wonder that Knox county has more than three dozen practicing attorneys within her bounds.

—Hon. John M. Tinsley, our representative in the lower house, will most likely be a candidate for the State Senate this fall. None of the senators elected this fall will know how long they are entitled to serve until that body has met in regular session, when they will cast lots, I am told, to determine who will hold two and who four years.

—Major G. Mat Adams, twice Congressman from this district and later Clerk of the House and still later Secretary of State under Gov. Buckner and later still candidate before the convention for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, who has been living at Frankfort for several years, has decided to again make his permanent home at Barbourville, and he and Mrs. Adams now have rooms at the Anderson House.

—Upon the occasion of a recent funeral in this place, after the last and rites had been concluded and the procession was returning, a young gentleman of this vicinity who is expected to have the degree of "M. D." conferred on him next year, approached a number of young ladies who were in the procession and enquired in a tone loud enough to be heard by others: "Well, how did you enjoy the funeral?" As it was addressed to no one in particular, every one smiled but no response came.

—The "tip" from Chicago which appeared in the Louisville Times Monday afternoon in reference to Hon. James D. Black being a candidate for governor in the coming campaign does not seem to be well founded. Mr. Black is one of our World's Fair Commissioners and is a wealthy young man with a large law practice through his native and adjoining counties, and while he has considerable political influence among the "faithful" of these mountain districts and may have some political aspirations, it is quite certain, by his record in the past, that he does not "lay awake" at night worrying about politics. We would all like to see him governor, of course, but hardly think it probable, particularly at the next term.

To Trustees of Common Schools.
The new school bill provides that all common schools shall be taught for at least five months. Those districts reporting a less number of pupils than 45 will be paid for that number and be required to have not less than five months session. The State Superintendent directs me to notify such school trustees accordingly.

W. F. McClary, Co. Supt.
Dr. Appleman will meet his many patients and all others who wish to consult him at the Myers House next Tuesday, July 18. The Dr.'s good work still continues and his practice is better than ever. He has cured many and will gladly give all inquirers the names of those cured if they will call. He does not publish names. If you are sick, consult him and if he can't furnish satisfactory reference don't take his treatment.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—There is some talk of giving an impromptu hop to-morrow (Friday) evening in the new Owsley building.

—Miss Nellie Royston, whose serious illness was reported in our last letter, is some better to day and hopes are entertained for her recovery.

—Mr. Joe E. Carr has resigned as agt. for the L. & N. at this place. Mr. Carr is a clever young gentleman and has made many friends since he came to Lancaster. Mr. Patterson, formerly agent at Berea, has taken charge of the office.

—Two wagon loads of young folks went down to Dix River Wednesday afternoon. Each couple took a basketful of something good to eat and a large supper was spread. The got back to town about 8 o'clock and report an elegant time. Mr. J. M. Farra was the master of ceremonies and conducted things in his usual graceful and dignified way.

—Mr. Lee Kinnaird, of Middleboro, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kinnaird. Mr. Will Berkele, of Louisville, was here Wednesday. Miss Patti Beasley has returned from Georgetown. Mr. Charlie Anderson was here Wednesday and Thursday. Miss Lula D. Slaughter, of Danville, is the guest of Mrs. G. S. Gaines. Miss Fannie Pugh returned on Wednesday to Cincinnati. Misses Mertie and Pearl Walker have returned to Perryville. Mrs. Jim Kemper and daughter, of Missouri, visited relatives here this week. Miss Ora Ray leaves for Winchester Saturday. Mrs. Gresham left Thursday for Pittsburgh and from there to West Virginia.

—The Kentucky World's Fair commissioners are having a hard time explaining how it is the exhibit from this State has been a disappointment. The commissioner representing the educational interests of the State is out in a card in which he claims that although he sent out circulars in every direction calling upon the people and the common school commissioners to tender assistance, he received replies from only 25 or 30 counties. He not only called loudly for help, but actually visited Louisville in the interest of the exhibit. The delinquencies of the commissioners who sought the positions and were paid to give their time and attention to the matter, are now to be visited upon the people, who are taxed to pay the appropriation. Without in any manner reflecting upon the ability of the commissioners, it may be said of a truth that if the governor, instead of hunting up politicians, had selected practical business men who had horse swapping sense, who knew how to set a hen on a hillside, and who had built houses, worked on farms, raised stock and knew which cows gave the butter milk, Kentucky would have astonished the world and in the language of General Taylor, "the rest of mankind." If the commissioners could have taken to the Fair the fastest trotter or the fastest racer in the world, the people of other countries would have flocked to see it in great gangs and this might have been accomplished with very little trouble and expense.

LONDON, LAUREL COUNTY.

—Circuit Court commences here to-day, Thursday.

—The Laurel County Fair will be held Aug. 23-25.

—Col. R. C. Ford was here from Manchester Wednesday.

—Eliott McNeill, aged 60, died near East Bernstadt Monday. He was a respected citizen.

—The teachers' examination was held here Saturday, but the result has not been ascertained.

—One fare for the round trip on the excursion train from this place to the Stanford Fair, July 27 and 28.

—A republican primary convention to select a candidate for the Legislature was held Saturday at the different precincts in the county. The republican county committee gave the nomination to Hon. John G. Creech over Hon. E. K. Wilson by a majority of 26 votes. W. W. Mullins, John B. Faris and George W. Brown were the other candidates but their vote was small.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—The Kentucky State Sunday-school union will meet at Ashland, August 22-4.

—The Rev. T. J. Davenport, of Virginia, has been called as pastor of the Baptist church at Lawrenceburg, Ky.

—Rev. R. H. Caldwell will not be able to fill his appointment at Walnut Flat to-morrow or Sunday owing to his recent accident.

—The Rev. Samuel M. Hamilton, pastor of the Warren Memorial church, Louisville, has resigned his position on the Board of Trustees of Centre College, owing to his disapproval of the fight of Dr. Wm. C. Young against Dr. Briggs.

—Rev. John S. Penman, of Irvington, N. Y., who was a delegate to the general assembly which condemned Dr. Briggs of heresy, has resigned his pastorate, declaring that he can no longer subscribe to the system of doctrines of the Presbyterian church.

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—The normal school taught by Prof. Nooe and Petry closed last Friday.

—The man with the petrified man is here this week taking in the dimes.

—On account of a little carelessness our letter did not reach you last week.

—Rev. E. L. Stephens filled the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday.

—The Teachers' institute meets Monday. Prof. Roach, of Lexington, will conduct it.

—The Union S. S. Convention of Whitley county meets at Lot on July 20 and 21. An interesting program has been made out and a good attendance is expected.

—The dwelling house of Garnet Davis, located about one mile west of town, was burned with all its contents last Thursday evening about 4 o'clock. It was insured.

—There were 61 in the examination for teachers last Friday and Saturday. The examiners are not through grading yet, but say they think about 50 per cent will secure certificates.

—The Christian church held an election of officers Sunday evening and J. L. Whitehead, J. T. Freeman and James Stinson were elected elders and Curns Gatliff, Dr. F. W. Watkins and Marion Sullivan deacons.

—Prof. J. A. Butler's writing school closed Saturday. Miss Carrie Myers was given the honor of being the best writer and Miss Cora Crouch was awarded a gold pin for having made the greatest improvement.

—Mr. W. E. DeLany has returned from Ironton, Ohio, where he was called last week on account of the death of his father. Mr. Pan, attorney at law of Indianapolis, in company with Mr. J. W. Siler, visited Cumberland Falls last week.

Yosemite.

—Rev. Vine preached at Grove Sunday.

—A nice rain would be appreciated by the farmers.

—The farmers are all harvesting oats, which crop is turning out well.

—Mrs. G. C. Smith, who has been visiting her relatives at Mt. Vernon, returned home Sunday.

—Born, to the wife of Richard Sharp, a boy weighing 10 pounds. Dick is the happiest man in the country.

—Miss Berta Robards who has been visiting her brother, Mr. W. L. Robards, returned to her home at Mitchellsburg, Monday.

—The Rev. G. C. Smith had a slight sunstroke Sunday, which by the way, was warm enough to give all of us a similar trouble.

—J. M. Durham's appointment of postmaster at Middleburg has given the 12 applicants for the office here hope that the official lightning will strike one of them soon.

—John and Nelson Wilcher, who have been in Eastern Kentucky for the last five months in the tan bark business, came home last week. The report good luck in that business this year.

—W. L. Peairs, our genial and handsome conductor who holds down the "570 side-door palace" on the C. & G., made a flying trip to Cincinnati, Saturday. Dr. I. S. Wesley and John Carson took advantage of the cheap rates and did likewise.

—School opened here Monday with Prof. P. H. Taylor and Miss Della Godby on the staff, with 42 pupils. We learn that there are 131 scholars in this district and wonder why it is that more of them do not attend. We think the trustees should look into this.

Muscular Rheumatism and Indigestion.

Nashville, Tenn., March 6, 1893.—The Stockton Medicine Co., Nashville, Tenn. Gentlemen:—I have had Muscular Rheumatism and Indigestion for a number of years and had lost hopes of ever finding any relief, as the most skilled physicians had failed in my case, but I am happy to say your Antiseptic has made a complete cure, and I do most heartily recommend it to all for Rheumatism and Indigestion. I will gladly answer all inquiries in regard to Antiseptic.

Yours Respectfully, W. E. Bateman, 310 Broad Street.

For sale by A. R. Penny, Druggist, Stanford.

—Gov. Brown has vetoed numerous items of the General Appropriation bill, Senator Goebel's County Seat Removal bill and Mr. O'Meara's bill providing for the disposition of Hardin county's surplus funds realized from the county's sale of L. & N. bonds.

—Remember the picnic here Saturday.

—Marriage license has issued to Mr. W. J. Elliott and Miss Luvenia Walls.

—There we 31 teachers in attendance at the monthly examination on last Friday and Saturday. The result has not been announced yet.

—Misses Bettie and Maud Burke, of Danville, came on a visit to Col. Silas Adams last Friday and remained until Sunday, and returned home much to the discomfit of a couple of Liberty young men.

—The sudden and unexpected death of Mr. James B. Green, of Hustonville, shocked the people of this section. For nearly half a century Mr. Green has been a devoted worker in the cause of temperance, morality and religion and his loss will be keenly felt. Condolence is tendered to his wife, relatives and friends by the people of this section.

—On yesterday Dr. O. H. McRoberts brought in the startling news that two men of this county on returning from Wade's, in Lincoln county, on last Saturday, fell dead from their horses, but he could not learn their names.

P. S. Since writing the above Ab. Hall brings in this evening the pleasing intelligence that the two men spoken of revived, and that it was only a case of suspended animation.

—As physicians from other counties have expressed a desire to attend the Casey County Medical Association, your correspondent has been requested to state the subject to be discussed at the next meeting which convenes at Middleburg at 10 A. M., on the 4th Monday in this month, the 24. The subject selected is Cholera—its Prophylaxis and Treatment. The discussion is to be opened by Dr. O. H. McRoberts, of this place. Volunteer papers by other physicians and reports of cases will be in order after the selected subject is debated.

MIDDLEBURG.

—Rev. Edgar Fogle preached at the Baptist church Sunday night.

—Spurgeon Simpson left for his home in Madison county Monday. Nelson Wilcher made a flying visit to his family here last week.

—We are requested by one of the band boys to say that the Middleburg Cornet Band has nothing to do with the picnics gotten up and run by W. E. McWhorter. The band is employed by Mr. M. to play for these gatherings, but is not responsible for his conduct or any contracts he may make.

—The post office question has been settled and J. M. Durham is the winning man. He sent up a much more extensively signed petition than either of the other three applicants and besides had the endorsement of Hon. M. J. Durham to help him on. The appointment gives almost general satisfaction.

—In a recent letter from this place we reported the conduct of W. E. McWhorter on June 17th, not with a view of blowing him or his picnic up, but a correspondent bobs up at Yosemite, though he does not live there by a long shot, and attempts to cover up the disgraceful affair here by insinuating at us. Now we do not wish to notice the dirty dirt, satisfied that our standing as a citizen is sufficient defense against anything that may be said by the Yosemite correspondent, who it seems has a pretty long (tail) trail that trails closely to his heels. In reporting the conduct of McWhorter and McDaniel here, we were not actuated by prejudice toward either of them, but by a sense of duty, and we have no apology to make, as we have been informed that it was much worse than we reported, but if we are forced to refer to it again we will tell the whole story.

JOE MUNDAY.

His Wife Says That He Was Not Cruel and That He Has Reformed Completely.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)

Since my arrival in Stanford I have learned that during our absence in Florida a communication appeared in your paper relative to my husband's treatment of his family, charging him with "cruelty to his children." Permit me, please, to state through your columns that it is false—a malicious fabrication. It is true that he has been the victim of drink—became so by using it for hemorrhages. Two years of my life were years of sadness, not made so by his unkindness to me and the children, but by drink. Through the wonderful discovery of Dr. Keeley he has been freed from the demon drink, made a new man and for months I have been the happiest woman on earth, without a care. Will not the good people help him by kindness and sympathy to continue the useful life to which he is now consecrating himself. Respectfully,

Mrs. Joe Munday.

Do You Suffer With Rheumatism?
Then it is your own fault, for a few bottles of Stockton's Antiseptic will make a permanent cure. Never fails. Ask A. R. Penny, Stanford, for it. It kills microbes in all parts of the system. Read our little book.

EVERY FRIDAY.

A TERRIBLE tragedy was enacted at the Chicago Monday afternoon. The large building of the Cold Storage Company, which had an ice skating rink, situated just outside of the fair grounds, caught fire in the tall tower, which rose 100 feet or more above it. In an almost incredible space of time 20 firemen had climbed to it, when, horror of horrors, flames broke out beneath them, completely shutting them off from escape or rescue. Only two alternatives were left—one to remain and be burned, the other to jump to the roof of the building 90 feet below, to be dashed to death. The firemen those the latter and one by one they made the plunge, all alighting on the roof shapeless masses, except one, who, horrified by his perilous and hopeless position, jumped headlong into the seething flames below. Over 20,000 people witnessed the appalling spectacle, strong men fainted with weaker women and the cries and screams of those who gave vent to their feelings in that way was heartrending. No such catastrophe had ever happened in this country and he bare thought of it sends horror to the soul. Twenty brave firemen lost their lives and many others were injured. The favorable course of the wind was all that saved the World's Fair buildings, or many of them, from being burned. The World's Fair directors and others are severely censured for permitting such a fire trap to be erected in such close proximity to the grounds. It was about as combustible as a powder house and its destruction was but a question of time. Somebody blundered, and blundered criminally.

The new law regulating the practice of medicine in this State will go into effect Oct. 3 next. It repeals all the old laws on the subject and requires that every physician now engaged, or who may hereafter desire to engage, in the practice shall obtain a license from the State Board of Health and have it registered in the county in which he resides. This applies equally to all graduates, whether from medical schools located in Kentucky or elsewhere, as well as to those who are exempted from obtaining diplomas because reputably and honorably engaged in practice in this State prior to Feb. 23, 1864. Secretary J. N. McCormack has issued a circular that the board is ready to begin to issue certificates and those who desire to practice without legal hindrance must send their diplomas, with age, post-office address, place of birth, years in practice and the school of medicine to which he professes to belong, together with a license fee of $2. Dr. Steele Bailey is referee for this county and upon being required to do so by the board, the applicant must obtain a recommendation from him that he is in good professional standing. The doctors are determined that the quacks shall be weeded out and their effort should meet with the encouragement both of the profession and those who are to suffer or be saved by medicine.

The pension department is in earnest about purging the list. A large number of fraudulent pensioners have already been dropped and now an order has been issued notifying many who are drawing money under the dependent pension act that they will be suspended for 60 days, during which time they must show by competent evidence that they are entitled to be continued on the rolls, otherwise they will be dropped. Let the good work go on. There are hundreds of thousands on the pension rolls who ought not to be on them. The list should be a roll of honor instead of being filled by those who did not serve their country in war and who are now trying to live off of it and keep from doing honest work.

The U. S. circuit court at Chicago made short work of John Wanamaker's effort to advertise himself and his "sheep clodds" by bringing suit to restrain the World's Fair directors from opening the gates on Sundays, by throwing the case out of court on the grounds that the plaintiff has no standing in the court of equity, and the stockholders having elected the directors, they could not now question their discretion. Of course no other result was expected. Cheap John is a miserable hypocrite, but he believes in advertising and usually gets there by that route.

AFTER reading our ultimatum in the last issue of the INTERIOR JOURNAL, Assistant Postmaster General Maxwell pulled off his coat, greased up his guilotine and went to work in earnest decapitating republican postmasters. He took off 127 heads Wednesday including those of the postmasters at Manchester, whom he replaced with that sterling democrat, Gilbert Garrard, and Millersburg, where he appointed F. A. Jones. We are looking at you Maxy. Keep up the good work.

THE Colorado Silver convention demonstrated the fact that the silverites are as crazy as June bugs. There is no use arguing with crazy men.

The codifying and classifying committee appointed by resolution of the late unalamented will not perform its duties now nor 'smother time, thanks to Gov. Brown, who sent his little veto hatchet clear through the whole concern. His reasons for so doing commend themselves to the wayfaring man even though he be a bigger fool than the members of the legislature who passed the act, conferring such extraordinary plenary powers on a commission. The governor very truly says that the laws of the commonwealth stand inviolate, word for word, as they were adopted, unless constitutionally altered or repealed. There is no power to expunge a section or syllable thereof except that lodged in the General Assembly. When that body adjourned its authority to legislate ceased and it could not delegate to a commission any right to change existing laws in any respect without requiring that such alterations should receive the approval of a future General Assembly of the State. This was not done. Indeed the sin of omission is about as bad as that of commission and both are bad enough. The evils that the body did will live after it. The good it didn't do will be interred with its bones.

The Howerton-Kerr scandal is still furnishing food for the lovers of that kind of gossip in Bourbon and Fayette. All the parties except Mrs. Howerton have had their say through cards in the papers and she has run off, possibly to Hamilton, Mo. Howerton in his last card asserts that after his wife had confessed to a criminal liaison with Capt. Kerr, extending over a period of some 20 years, he refused to live longer with her and believing that the man who wrought her ruin ought to contribute to her support when she was cast upon the cold charities of the world, he sent her to him to make the demand for $10,000 or $20,000. The money was to be held in trust for her use and benefit and he was not to profit in the least by it. Capt. Kerr maintains his innocence of the charge and denounces Howerton as a blackmailer. The woman's brothers side with him and if they do any gunning will point their weapons at Howerton. The latter's card has changed public sentiment in his behalf and it is now thought that he is much more sinned against than sinning. It is said that Mrs. Howerton was for a long time engaged to be married to Col. A. M. Swope.

Capt. W. S. Bailey, the popular and capable representative from Carroll county, dropped dead at his home near Worthville, Wednesday, of heart failure. He represented his county in the two last Legislatures and could have continued to do so as long as he desired, so great a hold had he on the hearts of his constituents. Capt. Bailey was the father-in-law of Mrs. Hallie Bailey, sister of Miss Gertrude Howard, late of the Stanford College faculty.

So FAR, we believe no county has asked the State Board of Equalization for a reduction of assessment without being granted it.—Louisville Times. The facts do not confirm your belief. Lincoln county was refused a reduction and when Madison asked for bread she got a stone in the shape of 3 per cent. increase over the first increase.

SUMMER TIME IN N. C.

BILL NYE TELLS OF SOME BOARDERS HE HAS KEPT.

Some Went There For Their Health, and Some, Alas! Reached There Too Late. The Lady With the Gout and the Man With Phthisis.

[Copyright, 1893, by Edgar W. Nye.]

BUCK SHOALS, N. C., July.

It is summer time in my mountain home, where the john pine, and the turnip tree, and the sourwood, and the curly poplar, and the laurel, and the white oak, and the john oak, and the red oak, and the black oak, and the post oak, and the swamp oak, and the live oak, and the dead oak, and the blue gum, and the gum, and the black gum away to and fro in the clear and beautiful haze. Here and there the sweet potato vine sprawls over the rich and arbutum soil or the watermelon hurries rapidly along to overtake the swift growing vine to which it belongs.

In my vegetable garden I see the tall, graceful growth of the asparagus, which I should have eaten while it was young, but a man told me here that asparagus was often destroyed by using the tender shoots. He advised me to wait until the plants should be in full bearing. I have done so, but with ill success. The fruit is small and still green. I hardly think there will be enough for a mess.

My radishes are very large now, but on biting into them I find them filled with a keen, searching wind, while the radish itself is poor, and our guests refuse them. Our white Swedish turnips also are slow, and those we have tasted remind me of carpet warp boiled with boneset. They are bitter, fibrous, and altogether we have lost two boarders on that account.

Mrs. Tripp, who is spending the summer here to cure her little son of the Lazarus difficulty, says that she cannot promise to come next year if we continue to live on fresh vegetables grown on the place.

"Why not?" I ejaculated. "That's the reason you came."

"Never mind," she retorted. "I never thought that such things could be made as you seem to raise on your place."

"Tut, tut, woman!" I exclaimed, rising to my full height. "I plant these things, but the All Seeing Hand causes them to grow. Do not revile me or try to cut down your board because a power that is unseen and beyond the knowledge of man sees fit to fill our radishes with oxygen."

I hate to board people who come from a small town. They are the worst. They keep telling me that at home they keep a carriage and don't get up till 9 o'clock. They came from Rossville, Richmond county, and register from New York. Their children at table eat like the Pinto Indians.

We had one lady last year from Elizabeth, N. J. She claimed to be a New York lady and came here to cure a gout. She claimed that it was a royal gout handed down to her from Henry VIII. I suppose that it was handed down by means of a clothesline or something, so as not to stain her.

I hate to speak of people's peculiarities, but this gout was the main thing, and she was only associated with it in some slight way, so I speak of it fully. The trio would come down to breakfast together and tell about New York till I got worn out waiting for a chance to tell about a fibrous tumor I had once, but she was here all summer and went home in September, and my fibrous tumor never got the speaker's eye for an instant.

She took the top off the milk at first, so we got to passing it around the other way. Her name was Mudge—Mrs. Mudge of Elizabeth, N. J., U. S. A. She said she came to our house because she wanted to be in a literary atmosphere, so we gave her the room where I keep my Congressional Records. She slept there all summer—she and her Henry VIII gout. I liked to draw her out regarding Henry and his peccadilloes and peculiarities. She would shed tears if I spoke lightly of the monarch or his liaisons and turn the conversation to New York.

A suburban prig with a wen on its neck will not be taken at our house any more, no matter what the price she pays for her board. Moreover, her little son ate a "loaded" watermelon from my patch the first day he was here, so I had to ride in the night for a doctor, and yet the boy lived to chase 117 cows over the sea in the summer tide and get their milk all hot up, so that his mother threatened to go and board elsewhere on account of the milk.

A man with phthisis also boarded with us two months and four days last summer. He did not mind Mrs. Mudge when he wanted to tell about his phthisis. He went right on, and so our breakfast was about as chatty as any meal we had. He coughed an 18 bedstead down, and I put it in his bill, and Mrs. Mudge thought it was inhuman. I told her to shut up or I'd stop her cracked wheat on her.

Boarders are hard to get along with, and as soon as I get my place here paid for and the other installment on my well I shall not take any more to board.

Too many of them think that they suffer so much they ought not to pay for their board.

One elderly maiden lady could not go to sleep unless I held her hand. And she was plain too. She was trying this climate on her face, she said. I could not see that it did any good. She wanted to go to sleep just at the time I wanted to do my chores at the barn and bed down the team. Her complexion was the color of a soft shell turtle's stomach. Of course she was not to blame for that, but I should have made her board $2 per week higher. She was from Fishkill, but claimed to be a refined New York city belle. Once she wanted to tell me her history, but I told her that I had promised to wind the clock and go to bed by a quarter of 10. So I escaped.

One drawback about keeping boarders in a healthy resort of some notoriety is that more or less medical attendance is called for with the board. I can figure on the victuals, but I cannot calculate on the wear and tear in cases of heart disease five miles from a physician.

Once a casual acquaintance from Yonkers asked me by mail if I could take his uncle, who was needing a change and country air. I told him my rates for rooms and meals and a week later got up at 3 o'clock A. M. to go and meet him with the team. He failed to get his trunk, and so he wore my clothes mostly. In fact, he had them on when he was overtaken in Georgia after he had escaped. He was a good old man, but had been crazy eight years. The Yonkers man thought the old chap would recover the moment he got into North Carolina, so he did not speak of the lunacy.

Some write me that my terms are satisfactory if I would provide them with saddle horses. I cannot do that. I have laid out a good deal in merry-go-rounds and seaside toboggans and am figuring on a tame bear, but saddle horses for people who cannot remain on top of the horse, together with a man to go out and gather in horses that have been derided, reduces my pay to a mere bagatelle, and I have no special use for a bagatelle anyway.

Some of my boarders die in the house. This is not caused by poor food or neglect on my part, but many do not seek a health resort until they feel the waters of the dark river rising over their shoe tops. Then they go and die on the hands of some one who never did them any harm by word or deed. Is this fair? Is it just?

Many of them use more sugar on berries than is necessary. Others put butter on ginger cakes and ask for finger bowls for their little ones to sail their crackers in.

Others want watermelons for Christmas and snowbirds on toast for the Fourth of July. I hate such people and often threaten that I will let my well go on the mortgage rather than be knocked down and walked on like that.

I was born under the most favorable circumstances and date back as far as the eye can reach, and I would not be made a drudge of in this way by rude people if it were not for the fear that my well will be foreclosed at the depth of 103 feet.

This year my vegetables came in late. So did my cow. Now the boarders speak of our canned food in the meanest spirit that I ever saw. But let us change the subject.

I wish at this moment to speak a friendly word for a class who are so far removed from the aid of organized societies that they had a sad life, even in the beautiful mountains of this region. Socially it is a blot upon a very picturesque and delightful country. I give the closing paragraph of a letter written to his paper by the special correspondent of The Aurora. It is not changed in any way except in the signature, and that I disguise in order to prevent trouble or misunderstanding.

Anything in a money way, no matter how small, may be sent to me, and those whose conditions are fatherless may drop in and receive a part of the money. Below is the letter:

On Saturday last at noon, after a tiresome walk, I reached the mountain gap which lets the traveler out of golden valley down to the Cape Creek section, where Mr. James Andrews dwells, near this gap, in a small cabin, lives Betty Smart and her daughter Susie. Just three years ago I went through this gap on my first trip to Golden valley, and in that lonely home I found Susie, a fair blond, maid of 18. Her mother had gone away that day on business, and Susie was the sole occupant of the home. She was dressed neatly and talked intelligently to the agent of The Aurora, expressing a desire to subscribe for the paper. I then sent in her name. When I reached that cottage again last Saturday, Susie Smart was again found alone at home. Her mother had gone out hunting cattle on the mountain.

HOLDING HER HAND.

When she found out I was the Aurora agent who had sent her the paper, she said she had been reading it all the time and liked it very much. She soon prepared a good dinner, while my correspondent relished quite well. While mentioning kindness shown me by others, I will not neglect this favor done me by Susie Smart. She is a poor girl, and her condition is fatherless, but she says she tries to do the best she can. She cuts and makes her own dresses, which are neat and clean, adorns her home with mountain flowers and blooms almost unseen in her mountain retreat. There are many girls who deserve to be looked after and aided to gain a better lot in life. All such can find a friend in

YOUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Athens, Ga., is one of the most advanced cities, morally, in the state. During the past year the city council passed an ordinance "forbidding the appearance of any female on the stage in short skirts or tights."

It seems rather a rigid law, for sometimes a very good juvenile entertainment might be cut short by this ordinance. Think of little Eva in long dresses or dying with her boots on! Athens is a moral place, and in fancy we can see what a stride has been made there when the lady acrobat has to go through her tedious double somersaults and flying leaps in a trail.

Even the female elephant will have to drape herself or keep off the stage. "Canary birds and trained fleas," says The News and Courier, "will have to be careful." So will trained mice and dog shows. Possibly Athens means human females, but even then what of Little Eva dying in evening dress, with her trail hanging over the footboard, and Lawyer Marks in the wings weeping into the ear of his lady donkey, who is dressed in a Marie Antoinette basque, with probable court train on same.

A Double Problem.

The teacher had the arithmetic class before her, at the head of which was the grocer's boy.

"John," she asked, "if a man should buy a barrel of sugar weighing 200 pounds at 3 cents a pound and sell it at 6 cents a pound, what profit would he make?"

John gave the question only a moment's thought.

"Seven dollars and a half, ma'am," he answered with confidence.

"Next," said the teacher promptly.

"Hold on," interrupted John, "my answer was right."

"It was not," said the teacher with firmness.

"Why wasn't it?" insisted John.

"Let the next boy answer and you will see."

The next boy answered $6.

"That's correct," said the teacher.

John looked at the other boy contemptuously.

"Maybe it is in arithmetic," he said, "but it ain't in the grocery business," and as John gave place to the boy below him the teacher heard him mutter something about "extray fer sand."—Detroit Free Press.

CYCLING FOR WOMEN.

A HEALTHFUL RECREATION WHEN MODERATELY ENJOYED.

It Strengthens the Lungs, Cures Melancholia and Nervous Dyspepsia and Uplifts the Spirit—A Word For the Weary Housekeeper—Learning to Ride.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

There has been much discussion on the healthfulness and unhealthfulness of bicycling for women. Carried to excess it doubtless proves injurious, as does immoderate indulgence in any sort of bodily exercise. Too violent and long continued effort, such as steep hill climbing or runs of undue length and speed, increases the action of the heart to such an extent as to be dangerous, and it is claimed may even cause certain throat difficulties by inducing rapid breathing through the mouth. However, these same results are quite as likely to be produced by overexertion in tennis, swimming or any other active amusement. On the other hand, many doctors recommend the moderate use of the bicycle to persons having delicate lungs, nervous dyspepsia, melancholia (which is often another name for it) or a rheumatic tendency. Fortunately women have not adopted the stooping style of riding, which is one of the main counts against bicycling in opposing physicians' eyes. As long as the woman rider sits upright, with her chest well out and her shoulders thrown back, so long will she be a strong argument in favor of the wheel.

Like swimming, bicycling brings an entirely new set of muscles into play—not solely in the legs, as many suppose, but through the whole body. The circulation is thereby increased, and if a proper position in the saddle is maintained the lungs are expanded and the digestive powers strengthened. This last fact alone should be ample recommendation of the amusement to American women, so many of whom are sufferers from dyspepsia and the thousand kindred annoyances that arise from a sedentary life and lack of open air. An hour's ride at sunset will do wonders toward counteracting the mental and physical irritability consequent on a long day's sewing or writing and makes the probability of a quiet night's rest twice as good.

The habit of wearing tight clothing while riding cannot too strongly be rephended. To cramp the muscles of the body at the moment when they are being brought into more or less strong play, to crowd together the vital organs when both the heart and lungs are being called upon for extra effort and need perfect freedom of action, cannot fail to be harmful as well as uncomfortable and to give rise to evils which will not be considered the fault of the wheel, while they are in reality caused by the folly of the rider. Easy fitting garments and not too many of them should be the rule. Wool should always be worn next the skin, as it absorbs dampness and prevents a sudden chill on dismounting from the wheel.

BICYCLE COSTUME.

The skirt should be narrow enough, so that it will run in no danger of blowing back sufficiently far to become entangled in the gearing, and it should be heavy enough not to spread and wave at every gust of wind. As to color and style, a woman's own good taste and modesty will teach her that the less conspicuous she is the better she will appear while riding. Black, dark blue and dust colors all look well, and the blazer suit and shirt waist are suitable for summer wear. Low shoes should be worn to give free movement to the muscles of the ankles, and a hat with a brim is needed as protection against the sun.

Contrary to the prevailing notion among nonriders, bicycling is an easy accomplishment to acquire. Considering the impedimental nature of a woman's dress, it is a bad plan for her to attempt to learn without a professional teacher. The cost of instruction is not large—a lesson half an hour long is given for 50 cents, and five lessons are often sufficient. A woman less strong and courageous than the average will of course require more. Mounting and dismounting unassisted are the most difficult things to learn and are not taught until the pupil has gained control of the machine when in the saddle.

The first lesson usually consists in being led about the hall on the wheel and learning the use of the pedals. Then come balancing and guiding, which are at the start rather tiresome processes. But skill soon comes, and by the fifth lesson the pupil is generally riding straight ahead without difficulty and describing figure 8's with comparative success if not with the ease of an accustomed rider, although a graceful mount requires longer practice. The woman's mount is by the pedal and is more difficult than the ordinary running mount employed by men, who gain their seat by means of a small step on the left side of the machine. There is a running mount which may be used by either sex, but it needs practice and is usually learned at the cost of a few falls.

The first road ride proves to be not quite the simple thing it appeared when rolling over a smooth floor was the learner's only experience of bicycling. There are wagons, horses, foot passengers and other bicyclists to be avoided, and worst of all perhaps some little hill to be surmounted. In the language of one beginner, the wheel "strikes root" at the bottom of the first slight rise in the road. It refuses to budge an inch and topples languidly over. This indolent inclination is soon overcome by practice, however, and that not by means of physical strength, but by a sort of knack acquired unconsciously and gradually. It is a great mistake to attempt to force the wheel uphill. The power will come by use alone, and overexertion is injurious in the extreme. An athletic man on his first ride will stick at the foot of a hill that a skillful woman rider of not one-fifth his strength and muscle will not notice at all. This circumstance ought to cheer every woman who at the beginning is discouraged because she has to walk her machine up hill instead of riding it.

After mastering ordinary riding, hill climbing and coasting—and the latter amusement ought never to be indulged in unless one has thorough control of the wheel—there are several little feats of fancy riding that are easy to learn and pleasant to practice. Riding "hands off" is a useful accomplishment, since it is often convenient to have the hands at liberty, and is quickly acquired by a person riding a cushion or pneumatic tire. First one and then the other hand is removed for a few seconds at a time, and the trick of guiding the wheel by swaying the body is learned after a few experiments. Riding side saddle and pro-pell the machine by one pedal is also easy, and riding hand in hand—at arm's length, of course—with another rider. All such practice serves to give one confidence and complete one's control of the machine.

There are almost a hundred bicycle manufacturers in this country, and every year produces more improvement on the wheels of the previous season. The old solid tire is almost universally discarded in favor of the improved pneumatic, which runs more rapidly and easily, with much less vibration. With a modern machine, easy clothing and a good road, a nervous, easily worried woman can do wonders for her health of mind and body, and the sooner she is convinced of it the better. Fortunately the woman's machine can be ridden by either sex, so if but one wheel is to be owned in the family let it have a drop frame that the weary housekeeper may enjoy her share of the change and exercise occasionally.

After the first expense a bicycle costs nothing except for repairs, and in the hands of a careful rider it will take little injury, so that the item of expense is not a large one, provided a serviceable machine has been purchased in the first place. Once more, it is hardly possible to be too careful about overdoing. The first road ride should be short, and the hills should be taken easily. When the beginner comes home feeling stiff and sore, an immediate hot bath, followed by a short nap, will remove a great deal of the fatigue and lameness. Sooner or later the time will come when, mistress of her untiring steed, she will skim along unconscious of effort or weariness, threading the crowded thoroughfares of the town and traversing its parks and boulevards, or will wander far afield into the pleasant country lanes, resting in the cool shadow of overhanging trees and drinking from the wayside spring. And returning she will bring back great clusters of wild-wood flowers and leaves, and, better still, the cheerful face and wholesome hunger of a healthy and rational woman.

Luncheon Suggestions.
It is a pretty idea to have the guest cards at ladies' luncheons—which are usually rather more dainty and fanciful than any other variety—decorated appropriately to the occasion or to the person whose name they bear. The decoration may be very simple, and if the hostess does it herself the cards will be all the more valued as mementos. If the luncheon is to have a Japanese effect, for instance, and the dining room is ornamented with chrysanthemums, paper lanterns and umbrellas, the cards may be in the shape of tiny fans, with the name in zigzag letters done in gold paint, and these may be hung by narrow ribbons around the necks of the little Japanese vases that serve as souvenirs of the occasion, or if it is a "literary" luncheon a little chamois penwiper, on which is inscribed the name of the guest, may lie at each plate, and the souvenirs may be odd pen handles, quill or other. If the luncheon is given at the seaside, the cards may be in the shape of little pennons, and the souvenirs may be silver stickpins with anchor or rope knot heads. Never give costly souvenirs, as it looks ostentatious, besides forcing an obligation. Avoid the millinery effect of too many ribbons in the decoration of the room and table, and be sure each guest's name card is close to her souvenir, as embarrassing complications sometimes arise from a careless arrangement of the places.

A MUSICAL EDUCATION.

Miss Margaret Reid on Student Life in Paris and Its Cost.
[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

One morning in February, 1893, the young girl who forms the subject of this sketch awoke to find herself upon the threshold of a brilliant musical career. The New York newspapers chronicled the unequivocal success of Margaret Reid as Ophelia in Thomas' opera of "Hamlet," and a fashionable audience at the Metropolitan Opera House, disappointed by the illness of the prima donna announced for the last night's performance, had paid enthusiastic tribute to the fair young debutante, who with the courage and confidence born of youth and ambition had undertaken to fill the missing artist's place at 24 hours' notice. Seidl engaged the little songstress for a series of concerts, but in the early spring she flitted away from her native shore among the flock of foreign song birds that had made the winter melodious, determined to resume her studies.

In personal appearance Margaret Reid is a slender girl of rather less than medium height, well proportioned, and carrying herself with graceful ease and dignity. She is of the brunette type, with soft, dark, clustering curls, and large brown eyes lighting up a rather pale oval face. She conveys the idea of a nature full of gentleness and sentiment, but there is a certain strength about the chin which indicates her tenacity of purpose and the strength of determination, which, united to her melodious voice and artistic temperament, will help her onward to her destined place in the foremost rank of American songstresses.

Affairs of a personal nature have recalled Margaret Reid to this country temporarily, and installed for a few weeks in a tiny suite of apartments on Fifty-seventh street the little songstress receives a few of her most intimate friends and chats pleasantly and interestingly upon the salient features of a girl student's life in Paris. To begin with, she regards a residence in Paris as of incalculable value to a pupil, not because of a dearth of competent instructors in America, but for reason of advantages unequalled in this country, for artistic association and opportunities of hearing and seeing repeatedly representations of operas with which she is endeavoring to familiarize herself. Then, too, being thrown upon one's own resources enables a girl to acquire confidence, independence and individuality, a determination to succeed, and she is unhampered by traitorous doubts of possible failure that one's relatives are not always the last to suggest.

The selection of an instructor should be most carefully considered. There are as many charlatans in the musical profession as in any other, and teachers of worldwide reputation in some instances derive their celebrity from their business sagacity more than from their ability to impart instruction. In one notable instance a woman teacher of Paris is credited with spending ten thousand a year for advertising purposes.

Our fair little compatriot thinks Americans should at once rid themselves of the idea that student life for young girls in Paris is fraught with any more personal or moral danger than a residence in this city. She thinks her American sisters are especially able to carry themselves safely and correctly through any vicissitudes likely to occur, and while a Frenchman regards every petticoated creature as a target for his gallantries the tendency arises mainly from his excessively ardent and chivalric disposition. If his gallant salutation is not encouragingly received, he abandons the attack with his spirit undampened and directs his attention toward other attractive objects with amusing vivacity and untiring activity.

In Miss Reid's opinion the American girl going to Paris for musical study should be in possession of an income of at least $1,500 a year. She computes the cost of living at about 200 francs a month, or $10 or $12 a week, and regards the balance as a moderate allowance for lessons that it is important to supplement with frequent attendance at the opera and other musical entertainments and incidental expenses. For some other branches of study perhaps it would be possible to live upon a smaller amount, but for a singer it is of paramount importance that she should maintain a good physical condition and a tranquil state of mind unburdened by anxiety or the consideration of domestic detail. To avoid the latter a residence in a good pension is advocated as superior to home keeping in an apartment. In the latter the burden of domestic responsibility will generally be borne by the student, even if accompanied by her mother, whose willingness to assume the management is generally hampered by her ignorance of the language. This guidance necessitates referring all the affairs of the household to the student, who speaks more fluently and is more generally conversant with the prevailing customs of daily life.

ADA CRISP MARSH.

Blindness, Paralysis, Rheumatism

Guthrie, Ky., Sept. 9, 1891.

Dear Sirs—More than two years ago my eyes began to fail me. I immediately applied to eminent oculists for relief; for eighteen months they treated without a particle of benefit. Finally, about three months ago I went totally blind, and as a last resort, I procured an Electropole which, very much to the gratification of myself and family, has restored my sight. It has also greatly benefited my wife and daughter. My wife has been a subject of paralysis for more than two years, and my daughter a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism for more than twelve years. All this has been effected in the last two months. Too much can not be said in praise of the Electropole. If I were the possessor of the only one in existence and it could not be reproduced, all the wealth of the universe could not purchase it. I consider it the greatest invention of the age.

Truly and gratefully yours,

Masterman Peyton, Esq., of the firm of Ingersoll & Peyton, Knoxville, has brought suit in the Bell circuit court for Alex. A. A Water-Haul.—The Farmers' Bank and Trust Co.'s office was broken into Wednesday night, either by a novice, who thought to get valuables outside the safe, or a professional with the tools necessary to get into it. No matter which it was, the scamp was frightened off by the stentorian voice of W. A. Tribble, who was awakened by the noise and thought somebody was taking away the lower part of the building he was in. It was found next morning that entrance had been effected through a window on Lancaster street and no harm was done save the tearing out of several slats of the shutter.

See our ad. for this week. We want to sell our present stock for silver, so as to be ready to begin on a gold basis. Now is your time to get stuff cheap. Hughes & Tate.

For disturbing a Sunday school picnic at Moreland, George and Eugene Carter were fined $20 and $25, respectively, and were lodged in jail to work it out. There are eight prisoners in jail now that the town could work to great advantage getting rid of the weeds and other unsightly things on the street. Why is it not done, Mr. Mayor?

Free Turnpikes.—On this platform, John A. Chappell is announced as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the August primary. He thinks that he can easily ride to victory on it, but if we are not very much mistaken he will be sadly disappointed. There are a number of people who without giving the matter much thought will declare for free turnpikes, but we think we will be able to show before the election is held, that the people of Lincoln county can not afford to go into the free turnpike business. At the lowest calculation it will cost $100,000 and some estimates go as high as $200,000, to buy the 150 miles of pike in the county. Of course this would not have to be met out of one year's taxation, as bonds could be issued, but the interest would be from $6,000 to $12,000, yearly, and that with the cost of maintaining the pikes, say at least $15,000, together with a sinking fund to meet the maturing bonds, would increase taxation $30,000 a year, and run it from $18,000, the present sum, to $48,000, or nearly three times as much as now. Are our taxpayers ready to go down into their pockets for this increase, or will they be satisfied to let those who use the pikes pay for them? Our road system is a very imperfect one, but it will be much worse should our people declare for free turnpikes and get them. But of this we shall speak more fully in our next. With the assistance of Hon. W. H. Miller, who is better posted on turnpikes than any man in the county, we shall give Tuesday an elaborate article setting forth the facts and figures to show why free turnpikes are impracticable.

We have nothing to urge against Mr. Chappell, who is a clever and deserving man, but when he announces his candidacy on an issue so much at variance with our views, and so inimical to what we consider the public good, we can not refrain from saying so.

TWO LOVELY FROCKS.

THEY MAY NOW BE SEEN AT GAY SARATOGA.

One Is of Salmon Pink Silk Mull—The Other Is of Striped Blue and White—Long Branch and Newport Costumes—Underwear, Etc.

[Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.]

WHILE one can scarcely say that the extremely wide skirts are out, it can be safely asserted that they are on the wane, and few new dresses are made so wide, or if they are made full the skirts are not so stiffly lined. There is certainly a spirit of independence in American women that makes them rebel against anything they do not like, and they do not like anything that makes them look ugly, and, better than all, they know what is and what is not becoming.

That the wide skirts are ungraceful when stiffened is certain, and so they must be modified to reasonable proportions. Some of the very prettiest dresses of the season are now being sent to the various watering places, and they have full gored skirts, it is true, but that fact is not made obtrusive by crinoline facings. One just finished for a warm afternoon in Saratoga is of salmon pink silk mull with a golden gleam in its folds and pale brown lozenges. The waist is quite plain and ends under a belt of rich passementerie, and there are two bands of it forming a V opening, which is filled with white lace. The collar is of the same. The waist and sleeves are of thin, stiff satin, and there is a full rose plaiting of the same around the bottom.

Another handsome frock for garden parties and the races at that famous resort is of blue and white striped Greek silk. The skirt is gathered to the waist and has four ruffles cut on the straight and superposed. The sleeves are simple gigot, and there are full white lace bellows and a white satin ribbon sash with windmill bow and side draping. The bent straw hat has a large bunch of blue and white ribbon. The young owners of these two dresses have had them faithfully copied in print and striped sephyr, and these will be for morning walks and piazza loungings, for the day of white wrappers in the morning has gone by, and no lady leaves her room in a wrapper, no matter how ornate it may be.

Trim white mull and jaconet dresses with a narrow ruffle at the bottom, a ribbon belt with or without ends, a wide hat and a Marie Antoinette fichu make the prettiest of dresses for Saratoga for the youthful. Zephyrs, chambrays, lawns and similar cotton goods are also worn. The light silks and grenadines are worn by the ladies of maturer years, but gowns that would be suitable for Newport would be far too warm for Saratoga.

The filiciest and thinnest of all goods should be chosen by those who intend to go to Saratoga. For Long Branch the same style and texture of the gowns planned for Newport are suitable, as the cool breeze from the sea makes such necessary, and there need be no difference in the evening dresses. For Asbury Park and Ocean Grove a rather more sedate and simple style in dress is expected, while at Cape May and Atlantic City there are two styles distinct and different in vogue. One is the neat and precise but always elegant and ladylike Philadelphia mode, and the other that of any and every.

SUMMER COSTUMES.
where. But the ladies dress well and suitably in these places if less flamboyantly than at some of the summer resorts. At Narragansett, Bar Harbor, Lenox and Tuxedo the New York-Newport styles prevail, with much calico and gingham and other wash goods.

The underwear of this season deserves special mention, as it is so unusually dainty and delicate. The most of the skirts are made of victoria lawn and have two to six ruffles of lace around them, usually valenciennes, but some are of fine tulle, some few point de gene, and many are of oriental. These ruffles are from 2 to 4 inches wide and overlap each other closely, showing but about an inch of each. The bottom ruffle is the fullest. Sometimes these ruffles are set on quite straight, often in festoons and often in a kind of shell pattern. Corset cover, skirt and drawers come in sets, and frequently a nightgown and all are trimmed to match. One suit, I was told, used up 110 yards of lace. Tiny ribbon bows are often seen on all these except the skirt. Colored silk skirts are worn only with walking or tailor made gowns, and not always then, for white lingerie is considered more refined, and trimmed in this manner it certainly is more costly. Some persons will not wear a thing that does not cost a large sum.

AMONG THE MOUNTAINS.—The best route to the Eastern cities is via Cincinnati and the F. F. V. over the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway. The scenery through New River canons and over the Alleghany and Blue Ridge Mountains is wonderfully beautiful and varied. The F. F. V. runs solid to New York via Washington. It is electric lighted and carries a through dining-car. No other train in America surpasses it and it is the only train to the East with through dining service. Among the Virginia mountains along the Chesapeake & Ohio are more than 20 famous summer resorts. A pamphlet issued entitled "Virginia in Black and White," describes these resorts, and the scenery of the route, and will be mailed free by addressing E. B. Pope, Western Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo., or C. B. Ryan, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Cincinnati, O.

TO CHICAGO VIA THE LAKES.—The greatest trip to the greatest fair on earth and a 1,000-mile ride; Detroit to Chicago in the grandest palace steamers on the Lakes. Picturesque scenery. Returning to Chicago direct, all rail; or you can go to Chicago by rail and return via the Lakes and Detroit. Berth and meals included between Mackinac and Chicago. Round-trip rate from Cincinnati $21.30 (via Toledo and boat 30c less). For further information ask C. H. & D. R. R. agent, or address E. O. McCormick, G. P. & T. A. C. H. & D. R. R., Cincinnati, O.

On Trial.
That's a good way to buy a medicine, but it's a pretty hard condition under which to sell it. Perhaps you have noticed that the ordinary bit of misadventure doesn't attempt it. The only remedy of its kind so remarkable in its effects that it can be sold on this plan is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As a blood-cleanser, strength restorer and flesh builder there's nothing like it known to medical science. In every disease where the fault is in the liver or blood, as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and the most stubborn Skin, Scap and Scrofulous affections, it is guaranteed in every case to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

To every sufferer from Catarrh, no matter how bad the case or how long standing, the properties of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say this: "It can't cure it, perfectly and permanently, we'll pay you $500 in cash." Sold by all druggists.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied with a wonderful diarrhea. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us, was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit. Then I said let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which we did and that cured us right away. I think much of it as it did for me what it was recommended to do. John Hertler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 60 cent bottles for sale by W. B. McRoberts, Stanford.

Mr. J. C. Howell, one of the best known and most respected citizens of Brownwood, Texas, suffered with diarrhea for a long time and tried many different remedies without benefit, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was used; that relieved him at once. For sale by W. B. McRoberts, Druggist, Stanford.

Rider S. S. Beaver, of McAllisterville, Juniata Co., Pa., says his wife is subject to camp in the stomach. Last summer she tried Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for it and was much pleased with the speedy relief it afforded. She has since used it whenever necessary and found that it never fails. "My little boy was very bad off for two months with diarrhea. We used various medicines, also called in two doctors, but nothing done him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. SPLENDID FARM
FOR SALE PRIVATELY.
I will sell privately my farm of 100 acres, situated on the West side of the Louisville & Danville pike, 15 miles from Louisville and within a half mile of the railroad station of Moreland. The farm is in a splendid state of cultivation, well improved with a dwelling of 6 or 7 rooms, necessary outbuildings, including a good barn. About half of the farm is sown in grass and the entire place is well watered and can be divided into 10 or 12 parcels to suit the purchaser. For particulars write to or call on
